About Tracey

Tracey Milo was born in Lowell, Massachusetts in 1964 and attended Boston School for the Deaf. She started to use art as a way to express her non-communicative thinking. Her art influences are Dali, DaVinci and Deaf Artist Nancy Rourke. She received her double Bachelor's Degree from Gallaudet University in 2012. Her medium is all about illustration, computer graphics, logo/branding and coding, and some Deaf View Image Arts, DeVIA. Several of her work has been exhibited at Gallaudet University one even printed in a French magazine! Today she uses art to express her experience an individual whose language and identification was deprived.
